

HOW TO USE THIS RESOURCE

This resource is intended as a source of information that aims to provide students with an introduction into advocacy.

For more information about the process of advocating, please see our Advocacy Toolkit.

If you do edit this resource, please ensure content and photos from this resources remain with the appropriate credit to Caritas Australia and the photographers.

We are a valued partner of the Australian Government, receiving flexible funding under the Australian NGO Cooperation Program (ANCP) each year to implement development and poverty alleviation programs overseas.

Copyright Policy: Material within our resources come from a variety of sources and authors, including Caritas Australia staff, volunteers, overseas partners and news organisations. These resources and the information, names, images, pictures, logos are provided “as is”, without warranty. Any mistakes brought to the attention of Caritas Australia will be corrected as soon as possible. To review the full Caritas Australia Copyright Policy, please visit: Caritas Australia

Links to external sites: This site contains links to external web sites. Caritas Australia takes no responsibility for the content of such sites, nor do links to such sites imply endorsement of the views expressed therein. External links are provided for informational purposes only.

This resource was last updated March 2025.

STUDENTS

Learning about challenges to the health, wellbeing and safety of others and our earth can be hard. If you are feeling worried or upset about anything you have learnt about through this resource, make sure you talk to your teacher or trusted adult. They can share your concerns via our website.

Do you have an idea for how Caritas Australia can improve our school resources? We would love to hear it! Please email education@caritas.org.au

Teachers

For more school resources, please visit: caritas.org.au/resources/school-resources/

Stay up to date with events and resources! Subscribe to Caritas Australia's Education e-newsletter

First Nations people are advised that this resource and external links may contain images, voices and names of people who have died.

ABOUT ADVOCACY: Information for Secondary Students

Laxmi (16) leading a rally with Child Club members at her old school in Jajarkot district, western Nepal.
Photo: Richard Wainwright/Caritas Australia

Curriculum Links

Poverty and injustice are created by the actions of people and this means they can be eradicated – it's not a question of if, but when. For this to happen, we must all work together towards the creation of a more just and fair world. Supporting students in advocacy activities equips them to make a stand and engage in leadership that is modelled upon justice.

There is a strong emphasis on nurturing a sense of civic responsibility across learning areas in the Australian Curriculum. The Humanities, and Social Science subjects in particular, aim to develop a “broad understanding of the world in which we live, and how people can participate as active and informed citizens with high-level skills needed for the 21st century” (ACARA).

Personal and Social Capability

Students gain an understanding of the role of advocacy in contemporary society and build their capacity to critique societal constructs and forms of discrimination, such as racism and sexism. In developing and acting with personal and social capability, students:

- appreciate diverse perspectives
- contribute to civil society
- understand relationships.

Students learn to negotiate and communicate effectively with others; work in teams, positively contribute to groups and collaboratively make decisions; resolve conflict and reach positive outcomes; and develop leadership skills.

Humanities and Social Sciences

This area of the curriculum explores the study of human behaviour and interaction in social, cultural, environmental, economic, business, legal and political contexts. This learning area has a historical and contemporary focus, from personal to global contexts, and considers the challenges that may occur in the future. It plays an important role in assisting students to understand global issues, and building their capacity to be active and informed citizens who understand and participate in the world.

Students are provided a broad understanding of the world we live in, and how people can participate as active and informed citizens with high-level skills needed now and in the future. They provide opportunities for students to develop their own personal and social learning, and to explore their perspectives as well as those of others.

Civic and Citizenship

Year 9

AC9HC9K05 - how and why individuals and groups, including community, religious and cultural groups, participate in and contribute to civic life in Australia and to global citizenship

Year 10

AC9HC10K02 - the Australian Government's role and responsibilities at a regional and global level

Source: Australia Curriculum, Assessment and Reporting Authority

Introduction for students

Together we can raise our voices and take action for justice!

Welcome! We are so glad you are here! Do you see things happening in your community – locally, nationally and even globally – that you wish you could change? Do you want to make a difference, but you're not really sure where to start or how to go about it? You're definitely not alone. The best way to start making a difference is by changing the way in which we live in our world.

Advocacy is an exciting and effective way to be part of the change you want to see in your world.

At Caritas Australia we want to support you in your efforts to create a just and fair world. The content and examples in this document are designed to inspire and form your advocacy efforts. By taking action on all levels – personal, family, local, national and global – you can do your part in tackling the structures of poverty and bring about personal and global transformation.

+

“Please, do not leave it to others to be protagonists of change ... please, do not be bystanders in life. Get involved! Jesus was not a bystander. He got involved. Don't stand aloof, but immerse yourselves in the reality of life, as Jesus did.”

Pope Francis, Christus Vivit n174

Finding inspiration from St. Oscar Romero

Inspired by the profound words of St. Oscar Romero, “Aspire not to have more, but to be more,” Caritas Australia encourages all Australians to take up the challenge to ‘be more’ in their daily lives: to take action for social and environmental justice, and to create a more just and compassionate world.

An uncompromising determination to do what is right, true, and just became a guiding principle for Oscar Romero when he was Archbishop of San Salvador, the capital of El Salvador. In his actions and words, he demanded peace; a peace which could only be found in realising human rights and human dignity. He raised awareness globally about the people in his country who had suffered immensely at the hands of military forces; he spoke up for the rights of the poor and marginalised.

Like many great leaders who have fought for truth, Oscar Romero was assassinated in 1980 by those whose actions and authority he spent his life challenging. Although his life was taken, his voice could not be silenced. Romero became a symbol of hope in a country ravaged by poverty, injustice, and sorrow.

St. Oscar Romero's dedication to social justice and Catholic Social Teaching, particularly the Preferential Option for the Poor, has since earned him the title of Patron of Caritas Internationalis.

What is advocacy?

Advocacy puts faith into action

Advocacy means 'to add a voice.' To advocate is to take action to support a cause or person. It is about challenging the structures of society that create and perpetuate poverty and promoting the realisation of rights for marginalised communities around the world.

Advocacy is focused on creating change in governance, attitudes, power, social relations and institutions. It supports actions taken on a large scale and attempts to address the deeper underlying issues that lead to injustice.

Advocates and advocacy organisations often attempt to influence decision-making that will in turn have a ripple effect on the health and wellbeing of people and whole communities. Caritas Australia encourages social change by working to influence educators and policy-makers and empowering communities to exercise their rights and ability to influence decisions.

Advocacy can take many forms, including:

- Education within schools and the wider community
- Individual or group meetings with politicians and elected officials
- Researching issues and publishing the results
- Use of the media to form public opinion
- Publicly supporting particular causes or policies
- Participation in social justice movements
- Supporting the work of social justice organisations such as Caritas Australia
- Organised campaigns that may involve letter writing or petitions

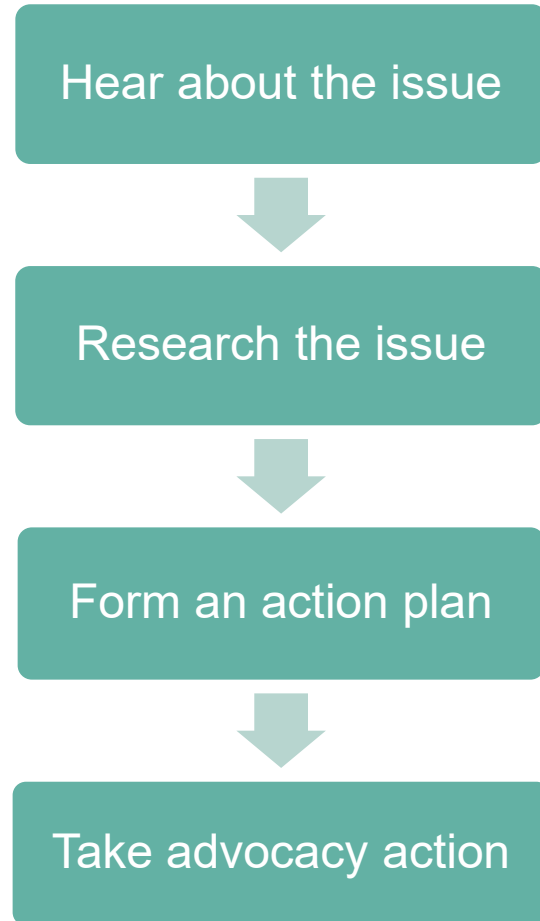

“Advocacy offers us an opportunity to bring the realities of our sisters and brothers facing injustice throughout the world to those who hold positions of power in our government.”

Ignatian Solidarity Network, School and Community Training Guide: Ignatian Advocacy

What is advocacy?

Advocacy Process

Successful advocacy does not just identify problems or concerns but seeks to understand the problem and develop possible solutions. It involves seeking the advice and opinions of those who will be most affected by the issues.

Advocacy is typically an ongoing process involving planning, taking action and reviewing the results. Advocates will often work toward smaller goals over time, learning from any mistakes and successes and adapting their strategies for the future.

“A tension exists between giving a person a fish in order to survive, and teaching that person how to fish. However, that is not the end of the matter. There is no point in teaching a person to fish if that person is already well able to do so and someone else has stolen all the fish or polluted the waters so that there are no fish to be had! Advocacy for the rights of those whose livelihoods are being destroyed is an imperative in social justice ministry. Advocacy and development need to operate hand in hand.”

Excerpt from Bonded through tragedy united in hope: The Catholic Church & East Timor's struggle for Independence, a Memoir, by Hilton Deakin with Jim and Therese D'Orsa

Who can advocate?

You! Anyone can advocate. It's not just for leaders or adults. For example, anyone residing in Australia can sign a petition on a particular subject that can be sent to Parliament. Did you know that this is the only direct means by which someone can ask the Parliament to take action? The House of Representatives in Canberra receives on average 161 petitions each year calling for action on a range of issues.

Source: Parliament of Australia

Laxmi (16) leading a rally with Child Club members calling for child rights, such as access to education and stopping child marriage and child labour, through villages near her home in Jajarkot district, western Nepal. Photo: Richard Wainwright/Caritas Australia

The Power of Advocacy

Laxmi became actively involved in the child's club at her school. This helped her develop greater confidence, and she was elected as chairperson of her club.

Clean water had long been an issue at Laxmi's school. Laxmi and her child club members discussed the need to build multiple water taps at the school so that all students could access clean drinking water. They advocated to the school administration, the ward office and the municipality office until they eventually agreed to construct a series of water taps on the school grounds.

"Now, I know where to speak, what to speak. However big the gathering might be, I'm not afraid to speak," Laxmi said.

Laxmi has since graduated from her school but continues to be involved in the child's club, serving as an advisor and mentoring the next generation of young leaders at her old school.

For more about Laxmi's story, please visit: Laxmi - Nepal Case Study \(Secondary\)

Caritas Australia's advocacy approach

We amplify the voices of our partners

Caritas Australia's advocacy approach is partner-led, evidence based and inspired by the principles of Catholic Social Teaching.

Caritas Australia recognises that there are structural impediments to people breaking free from the cycle of poverty. Our advocacy program helps Australians understand the connection of poverty and injustice to social, economic and political systems; it also encourages people to take action.

By working with over 74 local partners throughout the world, we are able to amplify the concerns of local communities through our advocacy work, as well as ensure our program work responds to the most urgent needs of communities.

We seek to have the voices and stories of the people we serve influence local practical and political decisions about their lives. We advocate for attitudes, policies and actions that uphold Catholic Social Teaching principles, particularly the principles of Human Dignity, Solidarity and Subsidiarity.

Our theory of change

At Caritas Australia we believe advocacy is important for creating long term change. Our mission is to end poverty, promote justice and uphold dignity, so it's our responsibility to address structural injustice which is so often the root cause of poverty, rather than just the effects. Our approach and programs contribute to the goal of Integral Human Development in the communities where we and our partners are working. Integral Human Development is the holistic development of the human person, covering all aspects of life: social, economic, political, cultural, personal and spiritual.

Our advocacy approach calls for an end to injustice by encouraging people of influence and power to work for the common good, while at the same time offering ways to work for change and bring hope

IF Caritas Australia supports the communities we partner with to advocate on their priority issues, promotes their voices in Australia and supports Australian communities to raise their voice in solidarity,

THEN the communities we partner with will be more effective advocates, as will the Australian communities acting in solidarity with them, and more likely to achieve their shared social justice goals.

Caritas Australia's advocacy highlights

Safer World for All

Australia is one of the safest, healthiest, and most generous countries in the world. Yet, our aid contribution is only 0.68% of the Federal Budget. Our fight for a just and fair world has increased since the pandemic. Communities are increasingly experiencing dangerous hot and unpredictable weather, fuel shortages, hunger, violent invasions and the mass of people. Now, more than ever, Australia needs to stand up and take action. By committing to a modest increase in Australian aid to 1% of the Federal Budget, we can have a huge impact. More details are available on our website.

SAFER
WORLD
FOR ALL

Climate Change Action

This Solomon Island community has raised the path to the local market because of rising sea levels. Photo: Caritas Australia

The impact of climate change on our neighbours in the Pacific is extreme. Our voices, together, can persuade governments and polluters to take action to achieve climate justice and protect our common home. The displacement of people due to climate change is a growing humanitarian disaster. Let's work together to make big polluters pay for the loss and damage they have caused. More details available on our website.

First Australians

We believe every person has a right to participate in the decisions that affect them. Too often, First Australians are denied this right. Caritas Australia has partnered with First Nations to promote subsidiarity. More details available on our website.

Indigenous artwork being displayed at Wulugul Walk in Sydney. The artist of the pieces sought support from a Caritas Australia supported First Nations program, Baabayn Aboriginal Corporation. Photo: Richard Wainwright/Caritas Australia

Women's Empowerment

Women are disproportionately affected by poverty, food insecurity, climate change, gender-based violence and abuse, as well as a lack of access to education, health care and employment. Our partners tell us that harmful social norms within patriarchal structures perpetuate discriminatory beliefs and practices and undermine human rights. More details available on our website.

Why advocate?

Catholic Social Teaching guides our advocacy work.

Advocacy, although expressed in new ways, is an ancient aspect of faith. In the Hebrew Scriptures, God responds to the cry of the poor and sends prophets to proclaim a world of justice. For Christian people, the commandment to “love your neighbour as yourself” (Matthew 22) means helping those in need through practical efforts of charity and working to end unjust practices and structures.

These efforts have found different expressions over time and have adapted to a changing world. Catholic Social Teaching (CST) has emerged to become a comprehensive set of guidelines on responding to social issues in the modern era. The principles of CST provide a vision for what a just world could look like and call us to assume responsibility with others by shaping a more just and compassionate social order.

We “must not remain on the sidelines in the fight for justice.”

Pope Benedict XVI, Deus Caritas Est n28a

Key Principles of Catholic Social Teaching

HUMAN DIGNITY

We believe every human being is created in the image and likeness of God and therefore has inherent dignity that should always be safeguarded.

Advocacy must have at its heart a recognition that all people possess dignity. Actions that address poverty, hunger, oppression and injustice work to uphold human dignity.

Laxmi (16) leading a rally with Child Club members calling for child rights, such as access to education and stopping child marriage and child labour. Photo: Richard Wainwright/ Caritas Australia

SOLIDARITY

We believe we are part of one human family and have a responsibility to help each person achieve their full potential.

Through advocacy, we can remove barriers, develop relationships and stand together with those in need.

Leaia stands in front of her make-shift home with Rose (right) from Caritas Samoa. Photo: Caritas Australia

Why advocate? continued

Key Principles of Catholic Social Teaching continued

PREFERENTIAL OPTION FOR THE POOR

We believe in prioritising the women, men and children most vulnerable to extreme poverty and injustice.

Effective advocacy highlights and give voice to the stories and experiences of the poor and marginalised.

Due to conflict between groups in the Democratic Republic of the Congo, thousands of displaced people experience extreme poverty. Photo: Caritas Goma

THE COMMON GOOD

We believe the good of each human person is intimately related to the good of the whole community. We are all responsible for each other.

Effective advocacy centres on addressing and improving the wellbeing of a whole community, not individual needs.

Rosalie is an inspiration to local members of her community as she encourages them to overcome the violence of the past, to work towards a more peaceful and harmonious world for all future generations. Photo: Arlette Bashizi/CAFOD

SUBSIDIARITY AND PARTICIPATION

We believe all people have the right to participate in decisions that affect their lives. Subsidiarity requires that decisions are made by people closest and most affected by the issues and concerns of the community.

Advocacy must seek the advice and opinions of those who are most affected by the issues.

Community members in north-western Zimbabwe working in their nutrition garden. Photo: Caritas Australia

CARE FOR OUR COMMON HOME

We believe that care for our common home is vital for the common good of all people. We believe a true ecological approach is a social approach.

We are to be protectors of creation and of one another. Since it is the world's poorest communities who are most affected by changes to the planet, advocacy that centres on the cry of the poor should also be guided by the cry of the earth.

Learning about sustainable produce through the Nepal Livelihood and Resilience Project. Photo: Caritas Australia

Ready to take action

By taking action as individuals, as a group or as a school community, you can make a difference to the lives of those experiencing poverty and injustice.

- Encourage your friends and family to get involved.
- Explain why the issues matter to you and use different communication channels to inform others.
- Determine if your school, parish or community has a group working for justice. If not, consider forming a group.

For more resources on how to advocate, download Advocacy Toolkit.

You may like to utilise our Social Justice calendar to explore specific social justice days that are relevant to your school.

Caritas Australia Interim CEO Kirsten Sayers with senator Penny Wong at the launch of the 'Anchors in a Crisis: Women's Humanitarian Leadership in Faith and Secular Contexts' report. Photo: Caritas Australia
Report can be accessed here

Ready to take action

How to create a campaign?

Step 1: Identify what needs to change?

- Use the See, Judge, Act process
- What is the key problem? Identify the root causes
- Identify what needs to change?

Step 2: Who is involved?

- Have you listened to those most affected?
- How are their voices included?
- Who are you targeting?
- Who are the relevant decision-makers?

Step 3: How will you influence?

- Decide on the best advocacy strategy/ies
- Develop a set of clear, concise messages
- Prepare your tools
- Develop a plan of how and when you will use your strategies and tools

Step 4: How can I make sure young people get involved?

- How can you get your message to the people who need to hear it?

- How can young people be involved in the design, implementation and evaluation of the campaign?

Step 5: Who can I work with?

- Who will want to get involved?
- Who are allies?
- Who is already doing work on a similar campaign?

Step 6: What obstacles might I face?

- What are potential obstacles?
- How will you overcome these?
- Prepare your strategies and arguments for opposing views

Step 7: How will you know it is working?

- Develop success statements, such as 'at the end of the campaign we will have ...'
- Decide when you will meet to evaluate

Step 8: What do I need to change for next time?

- Think about what worked and what didn't work in your plan
- Adjust your plan accordingly, so that you can be more effective in the future

+
Thank you

www.caritas.org.au